-Notwithstanding the earnestness with which the partisans of the various candidates pressed the claims of their favorites on Monday, the day passed over in unusuai quiet. No coilision, not even an acrimonious disputation, occurred. Everyone was working, each for his ticket, among the leaders; each for his pay among the foliowers, but ail in good humor. This unwonted harmony is due mainly to the wise and gentlemanly course of J. G. Interesting Mementoes of the Terribia Tragedy in Possession of a Chicago Lady in Whose Room the Martyr Breathed Ills Last.

The lady was all affahility until the reporter broached the subject of his errand, and then she gave a little feminino scowl. "Oh, denr," sire murmurei—"pardon me, sir," she said, "but I don't mean to be rude. You can not realize how in all my matured iife I and my family have been pestered and annoyed, and I may say, too, ma-ligued, because of my father's courtesy to the people who hrought poor Mr. Liacoln's wounded hody into his house on that dreadfor night. But you have not been misinformed," said the lady. "I am the daughter of William Peterson, of Washington, into whose house, at 453 Tenth street, Mr. Limcoln was carried from Ford's theatre, and in which he died,

Mrs. Rector is a charming lady in manners, is now the mother of a daughter of Iti, and has also a little son about 9 or 10 years old. She is rather matronly looking, and her whole bearing showed that she shrank from publicity.

"Yes, she said at last, "I will show you all the relies we have" While the servant was gone for certain things the lady pointed to an engraving over the mantle and said: "That we prize the most of ail. That is the very engraving, frame and ali, of the "Village Blacksmit a" that hung over my bed when the president lying in it passed away. I was not at hime at the time, being away at Rethelem, 'a, at school. My mother was not there either, as she had left Washington a few days before to visit my sister and myself. My tather was alone in the house with the servants and my brothers were also there. As is well known the house was directly opposite Ford's theatra.

THE MEN WITH THEIR BURDEN, "About 10 o'clock on the night of April 14 father heard the cry of 'murder' in the street, and rushe i to the front stoop. He was a very kind-hearted man. He saw some men carrying a body. 'Take us in-maa hurt,' said one. 'Who is it!' asked un; lather; but without waiting for a reply he swung open the double doors and said, "Tarry him up tairs." The men with their burden tried to ascend the stairs but they had difficulty, and father at once said, buil directed the men to my chamber, which was the rear room on the parlor floor.

"My mother was a good housekeeper, and tefach she left home all the beds were prepared for use. They faid Mr. Lincoln on the led, and in a few moments the liouse awarmed with au geons. Father know the moment they laid him down who it was, und though greatly shocked and alarmed, for he wes a secessionist, he promptly put the whole hou e at the disposal of those who were trying to and the sufferer, ife has often tool no that during the next hours he was in a kind of daze."

By this time Mrs. flector's servant had arrived with a great bundle. The fady un did it. "Here, "she said, "is the phiow up on which Mr. Lincola's head rested when he died." It was an ordinary three or fourround pillow, with a fuded ticking. Covering a space perhaps six inches square was the stain of blood and other conings from his wound. It was a ghastly spectacle. The stains have well borne the lapse of time. has the relic been kept that one can feel the feathers under the stains incrusted. The boister upon which Mr. Lincoin's shoulders rested was also produced. "I put another cover on that," said Mrs. Rector, "for my husband has never slept on anything else, and will not. We thought once we would put it away, but Charley couldn't sleep without it, so we use it. liere is a ilitle vase that was in my room. When they wanted a light close to 'ir. Lincoln's head Surgeon General Burnes called for a candle, stuck it in this little vase, and by the light the latel wound was examined. Here is the haif-burned candle," and the lady unwrapped a yellow stiel of sperie

"The old-fashioned spittoons used by Mr. Statton, and all the watchers by the bedside are around the house here, but I guess you don't want to see them," the lady laughed. "There is another picture over them," pointing to a little engraving. The black Lake," representing n full moon shiming on the water through a line of trees. "That hung on the wall at the foot of the bed, and my brother Fred, who stood there and held the president's feet as he passed away, has often told me it was the last object his eyes seemed to rest upon." It is a smail picture, but the meon is bright in the engraving, and it is quite possible that the dying man may have looked at it with a gleam of sensibility.

SEVERAL GRASTLY RELICS. "Here," continued Mrs. Rector, "is a box of sayer. Here are pieces of towers stained with thood; here are scraps of the lace curtain to the theatre box. Do you see this rent! That was torn by Booth's neel as he iraped from the box to the stage. Here are builts of bair which the surgeous cut from Mr. Lincoln's head. Most of these wers seat to Mrs. Lincoln, but we found a few scraps afterward. There were many other things which the family has preserved. My brother tired has a pillow slip upon which the president's brain oozed. he also has a bedspread stained with blood and sete of the probes used by the surgeons My sister Pauline, who lives in multimore, also has a number of things.

I mention these thing more particularty," continued Mrs. Rector, "because a New York paper said we were in povarty, and had sold all the relics we had. That is false. We sold but one thing, and that went to the government. When Mr. Lincoln was carried to the house he had on a pak of rubbers. They were taken off by my scother, and, among other things, were stored away. I had them for several years wrapped up with this pillow. You see the marks on the rubbers where the keat has half melted them. Weil, Secretary Belkpun, of the war department, one day heard that the Peterson family had never been recompensed one cent for the trouble they had been caused and that the Lincoln family had never even thanked a single member of it, and he sent over for that pair of rubbers. He kept the rubbers and sent me a check for $550, and the rubbers are now in the museum in the old Ford theater buildeng.

"One thing more I can tell you," said Mrs. Rector, "that I know has never been in ; rist before. The very room Mr. Lincoin died in bad frequently been occupied by Wilkas Booth. While I was away at school mother used often to let the room. When Mr. Lincoin lay dying in my room there was even then a faundry memorandum on the wall, by the side of the dressing mirror, in Booth's own handwriting. It had perhaps been there for months, but I suppose some of Mr. Etanton's detectives had found it at the simet We might all have been hanged with Mrs. Surratt. A CURIOUS ORIENTAL LAND

Now Being Scientifically Explored for the First Time.

During the past five years a work of great national and scientific interest has been going on in Japan. It is only within a few months that anything has been known of Japan in this country or in Europa. It has revealed hitherto unknown features of the country, and has thrown a flood of light on its geography, geology, and resource, both actual and possible. When the survey was begun there were hardly any maps which were reliable. The proportion of explored and unexplored resource was not known. The coast survey was quite correct, but the interior of the country was aimost a terra incognita. The nature of the soil, the face of the country, and a topographical survey, were matters to be systematically examined and put on rec-

The survey is conducted by three dapartments-topographical, geological, and agronomical A tourth-a chemical sectionwas created to investigate and test the material presented by the geological and ag-ronomical. The difficulties of the work have been numerous. The Japanese chain of islands is little more than a huge and complicated range of mountains, which, in parts, is hardly passable. Away from the main roads the survey could be accomplished only by great physical vigor and powers of endurance. The inade justs training of engineers and the ignorance of cortography as understood in Europe have proved serious obstacies to the success of the work. Aguin, when the stage of publisher was reached, the government, which would not for a moment allow the work to be done out of the country, was at a loss how to accomplish its object. Lithography and belicgravure were tried, but the Japanese dll not understand These arts.

Ultimately the Toyodo Engineering company in Tokio was intrusted with the work. under the constant superintendeure and control of a director, and it is curious to not; that the maps are all etched, not engraved. The maps published are: A geological map showing the distribution of primitive, paleozoic, mesozoic, and tertiary deposits; an oroplastic map, showing the surface, shape, represented by horizontal layers, and the depths of surrounding soil; a magaetic map, representing the isogonic, the isoclinal, and the isodynamic lines of Japan; maps of the great historical carthquakes. The scientific digest shows that almost all the systems have had part in the formation of the Japanese range. It shows also that the mountain chain is of nullateral structure and beyond a doubt has been shifted from the side of the Japanese sea to the side of the free ocean. Another striking feature to 'liere, Louise's room,' and he the great transverse depression which crosses the main island near the capital -Chicago Times.

The Religion of the Koran.

Islam is one of the strangest facts in the aistory of man; under some aspects stranger even than Christianity itself. Christendom only partially acknowledges the influence of Christianity. The civilization of Christendom is not Christian hut itoman in origin; its science and literature are Greek, its social systems mainly feudal and Teutonic. But the religion and civilization of Islam are one: the Koran is the standard of its literature, and the Moslem desires no furthe: explanation of the mysteries of man and nature than what is given in the book dictated by God's own angel and in the readitions of its early commentators.

No other faith has ever succeeded in so perfectly interweaving itself with the acts and needs of common life as well as with the requirements of the state, and it subsists from age to age without a priesthood and without a church. The Mosiem holds immediate communion with Aliah, and the imam, aided by no ritual, simply leads the prayers of the assembled faithful, and declares, theologiau wise, not the will or mercy of God, but the meaning and appreciation of his revealed word.—The Speciator.

TWENTY-FOUR HOURS THERE,

"Chleago bulids each year more than she can afterwards maintain," a man said. "She builds new miles of streets, and has to let the old miles fall out of repair. She has appropriated nothing for street-cleaning this year, and whatever is done in that line

During the day the risitor rode several miles in ali directions in the cable cars. They are admirable. They will leave New York behind the age as long as she is without them. One does not see them at their best in Philadelphia; it is necessary to go to Chicago, where they form the main means of intercommunication, to understand and enjoy them. The cars ride easily, move swiftly, stop quickly and gently, start without inconveniencing the passengura, and are better in most respects than New York's cievated roads. There seems to be no radical defect in the cable system. The cables cross one another, turn corners, cross beneath horse car tracks, and surmount every obstacle that a crowded city presents. The people, children and all, seem accustomed to them and give them a wide birth in crossing the streets; but for emergencies alarm tells are provided, and each car has a little pilot, or "cow catcher," of boards under each platform.

THE PARKS OF CHICAGO. in all respects more beautiful, they are so the purely park portion of the South park territory, through which the New orker that they may learn two essential thingshow to maintain a park in a manner credit. nhle to themseives, and how to make a park of value to the people whose property it is, and of whom they are the hired and weilpaid servants. This park is divided into three parts - sward, road and lak : There are no paths to speak of and they are not tered upon the sward, and the people move them about to keep in the slow circling shade of the trees. The grass, constantly watered, and mowed every five days, is a dense, soft, smooth carpet, and the broad, curving roads of clay and gravel, are as the surface of a mill pond. the earth excavated to construct the great and pretty lake smail biliocks have been made to diversily the surface and to a low for landscape effects, which have been delightfully achieved. Ity the way, whoever hires a boat on this lake may tish for the bass that swarm in the water. Think of lt, ye tyrants of our neglected, shabby parksthe public lolling and romping on the regal iaws and tlshing in the lake!

The gardener in the park is Interesting. though as untrammeled in his ingenuity as the tiny gophers that sit upon their haunches in the grass over which he preelder. He startles (bicago with his florai Ho constructs sphinxes and obelisks of little ice plants, sets out a great calendar of pretty flowers, changing it for every day in the summer, presents to the deighted Chleagonn view a buge foral sun-dial that actually marks the time of day, and in the matter of elephants, hearts, anchors, crosses and the like, literally growing in the ground, his ingenuity knows no let or hindrance.

A NOBLE PLEASURE GROUND. tors Sunday, it is the central park of Chicago, ites on Lake Michigan, and is best reached by way of Dearborn avenue, which, though Chicago does not appre into it, is the hand-oniest, most aristocratic and impressive street in Chicago. It is more elodiguitled qualities that must be considerable than all the l'rairie aud Michigau and the fike avenues the place possesses it contains less that is offensive than any other avenue or boulevard. But Lincoin park is a notic pleasure-ground. The trees are o'der than in the other parks, and the drive along Lake Michigan, as well as the views that the take affords, are godsends to the city, which, by the way, is said to be almost always cool by reason of its waterside situntion.

Not only in respect of its parks does ('bicago excel the metropolis. Her drives are oven more excellent than her parks. In Chicago one may take his own or one of the chenp and good hacks of the public liverymen and ride over forty intles of ronds that are simply perfect, and that intersect very Leantiful districts, both rural and suburban He will constantly meet the bideous but welcome watering carts that account for the general absence of dust; and if, while he is on the south side, he will follow one of these carts into its stable he will see one of the prettiest sights in Chicago-a wooden rotunda, open like a circus) in the middle, and framed with two rows of stails, occupied by beautifully groomed and staiwart fat horses, monarcus of their kind. Each stail is labeled with its occupant's name-"Phil D." in compliment to the great packer; "Carter II.," after the mayor; "Long John," in houor of Mr. Wentworth, and so on. These horses drag the sprinklers and public 'buses, and among them are a few animais of gentler mold for the policemen. These bear such names as Ida, Loule, Princess, Peauty, and the like. Think of that, you New York park commissioners! Even the people's stable may be made a thing of interest, and oven the people may enjoy it. The great building is as clean and sweet as the spring house of a dairy. The carriages and the carts of the rich and the poor alike are driven in across the coach-house floor to the circle framed by the stalls, where men, women and children who have gone in on foot are found enjoying the unique sight - New York Sun.

The New York Sun prints a report of a New York man's first experience of Chicago. The New Yorker had a German friend for company. The following parts of The Sun's article are interesting; Chicago's exceets are the shabbiest and Clark street, Randolph street, Adams and Van Buren streets, Wahash avenuue, and, in fact, all the streets they saw, or walked on, except State street, were full of ruts and holes; and State street needed cleaning to a degree that would have made Capt Williams cry and the heart of Mr. Coleman acha.
